The star speech of the day was delivered by Mr. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, the only member of the Keystone State who is opposed to placing the United States upon a single gold standard, and who is a firm advocate of bimestallism. He is about thirty-five years of age, and gifted with a fine voice, a vast fund of wit, and a great flow of language. He took his place amongithe orators, the logicians, and the humorists of the House.

On the other side of the question there appeared snother new champion, Mr. Everett, of Massachusetts, who succeeds Mr. Lodge. He is a fine speaker and attracted the attention of his colleagues. Every train leaving the city yesterday, especially those going out in the earlier part of the day, was more or less crowded with zealous Democrats returning to their homes, thoroughly enthused over the work of the great gathering. Very few of the delegates or party leaders will be found here this morning.

Senators Daniel and Hunton both went to Washington on the midday train, being anxions to get back to their places in Congress. Major Tyler also left for home about noon. The speech made by the Lieutenant-Governor Thursday night after Colonel O'Ferrall's nomination was about noon. The speech made by the Lieutenant-Governor Thursday might after Colonel O'Ferrall's nomination was universally commented upon as most graceful and hearty, but he did nothing more than his friends expected. Those who know him well understand that he is whole souled and sincere in everything he does. Those close to him hope that four years hence he will be afforded an opportunity of making that carefully-prepared speech that he has twice been willing to deliver but has been forced by nature of circumstances to keep in his pocket and make an impromptu address instead. Major Tyler is one of the most popular men in Virginia, and has close friends in every section.

Senator Little left for the North on the midday train. He takes his defeat most gracefully, and his friends say he will take a long breath and try again. He will, of course, be heard from in the canvass.

Mr. Kent left the city last night, as did also Judge Rhea. Senator Blackstone left yesterday afternoon.

JUDGE RHEA CONGRATULATER.

While the vote showed that Colonel OF-grail had nearly 1,200 supporters in the convention and all of these demonstrated their enthusiasm in unmistakable terms, no three men in the vast crowd were made happier by the result than Mr. Charles E. Wingo, of this etty, Judge J. Frank East, of Norfolk, and Hen. William F. Rhea, of Bristol. Mr. Wingo, though holding no office whatever in the OF-grail organization, was really the head of the Congressman's well-organized forces. Judge East was an eathusiastic worker in the Valley man's cause and contributed in large measure to his nomination, and Judge Ithea. besides having led the OF-grail movement in the Southwest, made a most captivating speech in placing Colonel.

O'Ferrall's name before the convention. The Judge was heartily congratulated yeaterday by his hosts of friends, who very truly declared that his nomination speach was one of the best of all those made in the convention.

The Norfolk section played quite an important part in the work of the convention. The delegation from that district had a choice position in front of the stage; Senator Lawless had the double honor of being made secretary of the Committee on Permanent Organization and of proposing three cheurs for O'Ferrall, and thereby causing the first real storm of enthusiasm in the convention; and Judge Legh R. Watts and Hon. John Goode received flattering votes for permament chairman, the former getting 12½ votes on first ballot and Speaker Cardwell 13½.

DIVESTED OF HIS ORNAMENTS.

DIVESTED OF ITS ORNAMENTS.

The delegates to the State Democratic Convention left the city more rapidly than they came in and by noon yesterday very few of them were to be found about the lobbies of the hotels. The verdict of all, no matter what their preferences had been in regarding the ticket, was that the convention's work was well done and insured as a sweeping Democratic victory in November.

There seemed to be less of soreness among the defeated candidates and their firleds than in any nominating convents tion held in recent years, and the platform gave very general satisfaction. Indeed, it was regarded by all of the party leaders as a strong paper enunciating principles on which the Virginia Democracy could stand with full confidence.

Now for the real float.

To nominate candidates is one thing but to elect them is another. Having performent of the latter and more serious one is the task to which the Democratic managers must needs now give their convention was held in Chicago.

One of the delegates in one of the faroff delegations furnished much amusement to the convention. He had evidently been infolding too freely in Democratic this imperturbable member.

Among the faces on the stage familiar to those who have attended the State convention in years past that of Dr. S. H. Moffett, of Harrisonburg, was missing. The general opinion expressed by those in attendance upon the convention was that it was the most youthful body of men ever seen.

A CITY OF WEALTH AND TROUBLE Its Very Architecture Reflects the Con mingling of Races and Religions.

Its Very Architecture Reflects the Commingling of Races and Retigions.

Bombay's history is one of trouble. In the sixteenth century Portugal snapped it up. In 1882 it was ceded to England as a wedding gift from Portugal, when the daughter of John IV. of Portugal, married Charles II. of England.

England soon found Bombay bothersome and granted it to the East India Company. And under its rule came the prosperity which, even to this day, brings a vision of comfortable, rich, solid men whenever the words "Bombay merchants" are spoken. Its growing wealth drew to it men from all nations. In 1882 the Abvestinan Corsair Seedu invaded it and held it till the English got the mogul Emperor to order him away. Later, under Robert Clive, it was made an English stronghold and Arthur Wellesley, afterward Lord Wellington, completed the subjection of insmical native princes.

Now it is a town of 800,000 inhabitants, it covers twelve islands of twenty-two square miles altogether, and its gross annual income is estimated at over $42,000,000. It lies at the foot of picturesque hills, and its beautiful harbor sweeps in a magnificent curve north and a south of it, making the approach to Bombay one of India's beautiful sights. The great Malabar road runs along the back bay on a high ridge. Here the wealthy Europeans live, and at its end is the Governor's handsome residence.

On the other side of the bay is the mercantile quarter, on a promontory, where there is also the old tort, which was formerly the city's citadel.

The city is full of bazaars and native markets, and the architecture in the native quarters shows the strange commingling of races and religions, which have

The beards these Kansas Populists wear are weirdly interesting. They are long and broad and scrawny. Some of them look as though they had been hooked on the chin with a snap-catch. Others roll lown greasy vests and come to a sorrel point at the knees. Then there are beards that start from the cres and roll in biflows to the collarless shirt, where they are tucked behind the linen and made to serve the purpose of underclothing. Some of these beards are ned in knots. Others are braided and left to hang upon the shoulders like the flannel-wrapped treases of an indian girl. Then there are diagdongs, midways, daubers, lambroquins, bijous, Guthries, Virginia-creepers, and rough-and-ready smilax. Some of these Populists sprout their beards beneath their chins and nurse them to such a length that the wind catching them unswares whirls them about like the skirts of a screentine dancer. Other members of the party wear hereditary whiskers—whiskers that were handed down by the old man as a sort of evidence of thrift. These beards look like quarter sections of alfalfa, with a pocket here and there in the thicket like the buffalo wallows on the plains of Montana. Now and then you will find a Populist in Kansas whose whiskers look like bunches of reindeer moss—gnarly, gray, and forbidding.

APROCLAMATION.

A PROCLAMATION. The State health officer to-day issued the following proclamation:

"Office of State Board of Health, C"Prisacola, Fla., Aug. 18, 1893,

"Office of State Boam of Hearth, "Persacota, Fia., Aug. 18, 1893."
"To the Public:
"The State health officer expresses the belief that the fears and apprehensions of the health of Pensacola which for the past week have agitated the public, involving the interdiction of travel and the consequent embarrassment of commerce, should now cease. Of the reported deaths on the 9th instant, a thorough and impartial investigation into the history of the case confirms the opinion heretofore announced that Rev. Mr. Waite did not die from yellow-fever, and that the death of the child, Ellen Wood, from the history of the case was of such a doubtful nature as to warrant only the disinfection of the dwelling as a sanitary measure, to which precaution the public was entitled as a removal of this element of doubt. This has been done under the direct supervision of the State and the United States government officers.

"Since this investigation was begun and during its entire progress the State Health Officer has been exprizant of all diseases and elements which have existed or occurred in Pensacola, and is able to aver that no cases have occurred of a quarantinable or contagious nature. This fact, coupled with the long period of active and retrospective observation, warrants the statement that there is no yellow-fever in Pensacola, and no hidden cases which may produce it. A notable fact connected with these cases is that during their occurrence no precautions were taken to prevent any possible infection from them, and free communication was had with each, notwithstanding which there have been no developments of a suspicious nature among those so exposed; and further, that the meteorological conditions during that period were peculiarly inducive of yellow-fever had the germs of the disease been introduced in the place.

"Therefore, alignerations and surveillance on travel in the State against Pensacola being now unwarranted by any rates are consequently unnecessary, and the further continuance of them will be considered illegal. I Destination of the second of the format of t attempt, with one or two exceptions, to instigate shot-gun quarantines, which is in marked contrast with a similar state of affairs which followed the events of past affairs which followed the events of past years.

"The State Health Officer desires in this public manner to officially thank Drs. Murry, Carter, and Magruder, of the United States Marine-Hospital Service, for valuable assistance rendered him in the investigation of the disputed cases, and in the supervision of the active work. The presence of these gentlemen has been exceedingly pleasant and agreeable.

"In terminating his special services here the State Health Officer further desires to express his thanks to the county health officers, the city officials, the obysciens of Pensacola, and the citizens generally for their assistance in his they estigations and for the many acts of courtesy extended to him, and more especially for the expressions of faith and confidence which the people of Pensacola have manifested in his judgment'and decisions.

Signed "Jossen Y. Poster, "State Health Officer."

At a meeting of the Committee of Safety held this afternoon resolutions were adopted thanking Mayor W. D. Chipley for his efforts in Washington before the health authorities, and for bringing with him to this city an eminent yellow-lever expert; also for his speedy return to the panic-stricken city.
